NOAA is beginning a process to determine the future direction and scope of the sanctuary. The sanctuary will be conducting a round of information meetings in communities across the state to share information with the public about the sanctuary and its programs and to initiate a discussion on how the sanctuary might best fit into the future protection of Hawai'i's ocean resources. All interested members of the public are encouraged to attend and learn how they can become involved in helping the sanctuary chart its future to further ocean conservation efforts in Hawai'i.
